Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20.—Beneath the gray clouded roof of the first real football day that the season has seen, Pennsylvania's football team met the invasion of Penn State today and turned it back as 65,000 persons sat banked in the double-decked stands of Franklin Field. The score today was 14 to 0, the result of a punching touchdown worked out by Paul Murphy, and a 74-yard run by Penn's other brilliant Paul, Scull, the captain.

But Penn's superiority was more marked than that. Only a tremendous, stubborn fight on the part of a game State team that turned back three Penn attacks within its ten-yard line prevented a larger score.

Scull, Rosenbloom and the others were stars for Penn today with a line working in front that did wonders in opening the way, but it was the stunning, crunching line driving of the surprisingly slim-looking Murphy that carried the day for Penn.
Murphy went slamming and fighting through the State tackles for gain after gain, holding to his feet amazingly with tacklers hanging round his neck. Joe Miller was the star of a fighting State team.

Passes Scarcely Figure.

It was Penn's tackle breaking more than anything else that won the game today, with forward passes not figuring at all in the score, save in one important instance. This was after Murphy had punched out Penn's first score in the first period and while State was threatening at the start of the second period.

Scull grabbed a State pass out of the air on his own twenty-six-yard line, and from there, with his teammates forming great interference in front of him, dodged and twisted his way over seventy-four long yards to the second, as it proved, last score of the day.

The game opened with State winning the toss and kicking off to Penn. The first half of the period was used up in punting, with neither side managing to start any kind of an attack. State tried some passing and completed one long pass, the only one of the period completed.

Penn Pushes Ahead Steadily.

Murphy's running, combined with Paul Scull's punting, was steadily pushing into State territory on the exchange of kicks, however. Finally, a Penn punt traveled to State's 5-yard line, beautifully covered by the Penn forwards, and Miller was forced to kick back from close to his own goal. The ball traveled high to State's 44-yard line and was well covered.

A State player, however, slammed into the receiver and a 15-yard penalty for roughing the receiver, gave Penn a first down on State's 26-yard line. On the next play State had five more yards of penalty, this time for interfering with the center's pass, and from the 22-yard line Penn worked out its first score on seven plays, all of them from the hidden ball attack. Murphy slid over his right tackle to the score. Scull's drop-kick for the goal was wide, but State was off-side and Penn was awarded the point.

It was after this that State's only successful pass came, a beauty from Miller to Hamas with the latter making a great running catch for a total gain of 30 yards and a first down on Penn's 38-yard line. Penn held, however, and when Shober knocked down an enemy pass took the ball on downs.

Scull Makes Long Run.

The second Penn score came with stunning suddenness soon after the start of the second period. State had come back fighting and worked well into Penn territory when Miller let go with another pass. Scull, cutting across on the dead run, pulled it out of the air and, with perfect interference forming for him, streaked up the north side of the gridiron for his brilliant 74-yard run. It was a very pretty piece of work and took the wind out State completely.
Scull's try for point was blocked, but again State was off-side and the point counted.

The second half saw the Penn line gaining such a tremendous advantage over the State forwards as to give the Lions almost no chance at all to make any sort of a go of their running game.
