

CORNELL VICTOR OVER PENN, 81-76

Special to The New York Times

ITHACA, N. Y. Feb. 26 —

Penn's hope of clinching the Ivy League basketball championship was dashed tonight as the Quakers fell victims to Cornell, 81-76.

Penn remained in first place in the league, but needs either a victory over Princeton Tuesday night or a Columbia defeat by Cornell to win its first Ivy League title since 1953. If neither happens, Penn is at least assured of a tie.

Hot shooting, paced by Gary Munson's 17 points, broke a Penn 3-2 zone and put Cornell ahead at the half by 40-34.

Trailing, 52-45, at 5 minutes 35 seconds of the second half,

Penn reeled off 9 straight points to lead, 54-52, barely three minutes later. Cornell then tied the score and the lead see-sawed until 12:55 when the Big Red got ahead to stay.

Steve Cram kept Cornell close throughout most of the half with 19 points. He scored 23 over all.

At 17:06, Stan Pawlak tied the score at 72-all on a jump shot. Foul shooting, however, gave Cornell a 4-point lead, and when Cram hit on a 3-point play at 19:48, the victory was assured. Munson led Cornell with 27 and Pawlak paced Penn with 33.
