

Penn Routs N.Y.U., 91-62; Manhattan Tops Rutgers, 75-67

HANKINSON PACES QUAKERS' VICTORY

Sophomore Gets 19 Points
—Mahoney, Garner Lead
Manhattan Triumph

Phil Hankinson lived up to his reputation as a scorer last night at Madison Square Garden.

The 6-foot-8-inch sophomore, who was Nassau County's leading basketball scorer two years ago at Great Neck North High School and became the highest scoring freshman in University of Pennsylvania history, entered the game midway through the first half and led the Quakers to a 91-62 victory over New York University in the opener of a college double-header.

In the second game, Manhattan College edged Rutgers, 75-67, in a contest that wasn't settled until the final 90 seconds.

Hankinson, who was held to 6 points by Rutgers and was blanked by Navy, broke out with 19 points and grabbed a game high of 15 rebounds in sparking unbeaten Penn to its third triumph.

N. Y. U. was completely outclassed by Penn, the defending Ivy League champion and winner of 36 of its last 40 games.

The Violets, losing for the second time in four games, were no match for Penn's overall balance, height supremacy, bench strength and discipline. N. Y. U. shot wildly and was credited with only two assists.

With 10 minutes left in the game, Dick Harter, the Penn coach, withdrew most of his key players. But even at that, the Quaker substitutes outplayed N. Y. U.

Hankinson Enters Game

N. Y. U. played without Dolph Porrata, its co-captain, who will miss the rest of the season because of a chronic knee ailment. Also missing from the Violet line-up was Ken Lam, a 6-4 junior college transfer, who injured his right toe in last Tuesday's game against City College.

Hankinson entered the game with 12 minutes left in the first half and his team ahead, 24-18, although shooting poorly. He scored 5 quick points, made a key steal and contributed some fine rebounding.

"We went to Phil because we needed more scoring strength," said Harter. "He gave us that and more. He's a real fine player who can only get better."

Penn succeeded on 37 per cent of its field goal attempts while N. Y. U. shot 33.8 per cent. The Quakers outdid the Violets in rebounds, 67-33. Penn had 23 assists.

Manhattan's first victory in two games belonged to Brian Mahoney and Richie Garner. Together they produced more than half of the Jaspers' points, Mahoney leading with 23 points.

Garner's worth was not so much in the 16 points he scored but in his defensive play. The 6-1 backcourt man came up with seven steals, six of them in the second half.

With Manhattan ahead, 69-63, and four minutes to play, Rutgers narrowed the difference to two points on baskets by Jim Snodgrass and Bob Wenzel. Those were the last points for Rutgers, which lost for the second time in four games.

Manhattan scored the last 6 points, four by Max Mahoney and two by Garner.

FAKED OUT: Gene Armstead of Rutgers leaping to block shot by Brian Mahoney, captain of Manhattan team, in first half at the Garden. Mahoney, after his feint, dribbled to Armstead's side and sunk his shot. Jim Rogers of Rutgers is at left. Jaspers won, 75-67.
